EINHERJER:

Einherjer is a Viking metal band from Haugesund, Norway, founded in 1993. Some of the band's albums are heavily folk influenced, while others have a more traditional black metal sound. Their lyrics retell Norse legends, and each of their albums has its own theme. The band split up in early 2004 after releasing the album Blot in December 2003, but later reformed. In September 2008, Einherjer announced that they would reunite to do some selected shows across Europe in 2009, including the Ragnarök, Kaltenbach and Wacken festivals. The band signed with Indie Recordings in December 2010 and their new album "Norrøn" was released last month, September 2011.

The band's name is taken from Norse mythology, where the term Einherjar describes the slain warriors who have gone to Valhalla and joined Odin's table. So prepare for Krieg when these brave Vikings step down to enter the INFERNO stage 2012! <http://www.einherjer.com/>

CHURCH OF MISERY:

Church of Misery is a doom metal band from Tokyo, Japan, formed in 1996. The band melds early-era Black Sabbath style doom with psychedelic rock. After several releases on small independent record labels, they released the EP Murder Company on Man's Ruin Records, then moved on to Southern Lord Records to release their debut full-length album, Master of Brutality. In 2004 they released their second full-length album, The Second Coming. That same year

Japan's Leaf Hound Records released a compilation of the band's early works. They released three split EPs, two with Sourvein and one with Deer Creek, and a live DVD of their 2005 European tour.

Most songs by Church of Misery are about serial killers and mass murderers. Every song title has a serial killers name in it and the band plays a cold, raw and groovy kind of doom with trashy, obscure vocals and English lyrics. Combined with touring Europe, this has made the band an international cult phenomenon. Church of Misery will blow your mind with their serial killer doom when they hit the stage at INFERNO 2012!
